

Meet Our Co-Director:

Taylor Baker

I try to live my life deliberately to encourage, prompt and foster spiritual, emotional, mental and physical growth with family, friends and my profession. I desire to lead by example and to make time for family and friends. I plan to take responsibility for the proper education of my child and the children I have at the Cummins Child Development Center. I will attempt to inhabit this earth and to make it better for the next person. By doing this, I define success as having standards, ethics and morals.

Success for me, personally, is being loved by my child, loving my child, knowing that I am a good mother, enjoying being an educator (teacher), and being as ethical as I know to be and accepting everyone for exactly who they are.

I believe every child should be challenged to learn his or her peak performance. To do this, I make sure the center offers exciting educational opportunities and stimulating learning environments. Cummins Child Development Center focuses on children as individuals, each with unique needs and capabilities, and to translate the child's visions into reality, taking dreams and making them tangible and real.
