

Peek-a-boo (0 - 12 Months)

You will need:

- Fabrics - you could use pillow cases or scarfs
- Book
- Toys
- An enthusiastic tone and a smile

The Activity:

- Sit facing your child and say: "We are playing Peek-a-boo!"
- Hide your face with fabric or a book. Gently pull this away from your face.
- Smile at your child and say: "Peek-a-boo!"
- You may want to play peek-a-boo with a toy. Pop it up from behind a book, table or piece of fabric. Or cover your eyes with your hands.
- You may want to respond; "Where are you?" and "There you are"
- You might find your child wants to cover their own head with the fabric, if so respond with "Where is?" and then "There you are".

Extending the activity:

- Holding your child in your arms, look together into a mirror and whilst you talk and make faces observe both of your facial expressions.
- Singing songs and rhymes with facial expressions and actions, making sure you always have eye contact with your child.
- Hiding objects under a cloth or book and then revealing them from there, supporting your child to understand that if an object is out of site it does not mean it is gone.

Keeping Everyone Safe

Remember not to leave a child unsupervised with scarf or large pieces of fabric

Healthy Hearts
and Minds

Words to introduce during the activity to support language development

boo	are	there
where	you	gone

TOP TIP:

Remember to do this activity gently at the start, as you don't want to startle a young child.

How this supports your child's learning:

Through play and interaction, babies learn about the world around them. They learn how people interact with one another and develop social skills. Babies are intrigued by people or toys who temporarily disappear.

By encouraging eye contact, this activity can also help to develop attention skills and turn taking.
